HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THURSDAY, Jan. 25.

THIS day report was made, that his Majesty had been waited on to know when his Majesty would be waited on with the Address of thanks of that House, for his most gracious Speech from the Throne, and his Majesty appointed Friday at two o'clock.

They then went with their Address. Adjourned.

FRIDAY, Jan. 26.

ORDERS.

Ordered in a bill for the regulation of the mooring of shipping, and to prevent robberies on the river Thames.

Ordered the report for granting a supply to his Majesty to be made on Monday next.

It was moved, That the act of 21st Geo. III. might be read. Ordered, That the said act be considered on Wednesday next.

The House came to a resolution, not to receive any private petitions, after the 9th of March next.

COMMERCIAL TREATY.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, by his Majesty's command, laid before the House a copy and translation of the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation concluded between his Majesty and the Most Christian King; as also another of the Convention between him and his Catholic Majesty, which were ordered to lie on the table.

He then gave notice, that early in the next week he intended to propose, that a day should be fixed for taking them into consideration.

Lord Newbaven desired to know, Whether it would not be proper to order their being printed? And was answered by

The Speaker, that it was not customary to make such an order for papers, which had been already printed and circulated.

HASTINGS'S IMPEACHMENT.

Mr Sheridan expressed his regret for having been unavoidably absent from his duty in the House, when a Right Hon. Gentleman (Mr Burke) gave notice that the charge against Mr Hastings, respecting his conduct to the Princesses of Oude, would be moved on Thursday next. As it was his intention to submit this business to the House, he had apprized a number of gentlemen, who wished to attend the discussion, that it was to come forward on Monday evening. He therefore hoped it would be understood, that the motion would be affixed that day; and the fourth charge, if the House should approve the appointment, on the Thursday following.

Mr Pitt, without wishing to obstruct the speedy termination of this business, suggested, at the same time, that he had it in contemplation to propose, in the beginning of next week, some day in the week following, for taking into consideration the Treaty with France; and as it must be obvious, for a variety of reasons, that as little time as possible should be lost in coming to a decision on the subject, especially as it had been so long before the public, he trusted the Hon. Gentleman would not press his notice for Thursday as absolute. For if the debates on the India transactions should run into the same length that they did last session, there would be little hopes, after two such discussions, to obtain any sufficient attendance for so important a subject as the Commercial Treaty.

Mr Sheridan expressed his acquiescence by a vocal ELECTION PETITIONS.

Two petitions were then presented, one of the part of Sir Thomas Beaver, complaining of an undue election and return of Mr Hobart for Norwich; and another on the part of Rowland Stevenson, Esq. with similar allegations against Mr Lowther for Carlisle. Petitions from the respective inhabitants were also presented on the same ground of complaint. It was ordered, that on Tuesday the 13th of February, the House should proceed to ballot for a Committee to try the merits of the Norwich petition; and on Thursday, 15th of February, that of Carlisle.

After which they adjourned to Monday.

FROM THE LONDON PAPERS, Jan. 27.

Petersburgh, Dec. 24. Mr Fitzherbert, the English Minister, has at last received the courier he expected from his Court, and, no doubt, by him the necessary dispatches relative to the treaty of commerce to be concluded between the two empires, which have been laid before the Russian Ministry; the contents of them are unknown, but it is likely the English Minister will receive a final answer before the departure of the Empress, and that it will arrive in England in time for that treaty to be discussed in the British Parliament.

Augsburgh, Jan. 6. It is said that the Turks are absolutely determined to prevent, if possible, the Empress of Russia from being crowned upon the spot Queen of Taurida: they will agree to that ceremony being performed in the capital of her dominions, or in any other place at a distance from those of Turkey, but not that it shall be done under the eyes of the Mussulmen, in a country so near to theirs; such ceremony with all their powers. Thus it should seem, that the Empress persisting in her resolution of being crowned at Cherlon will be the signal for an open rupture between the Porte and Russia.

Brussels, Jan. 20. The Emperor has abolished the court dresses hitherto worn by the Ladies of the court; and also the custom of killing the hands of the Sovereign and the Royal Family, and all kinds of bending of the knee and kneeling down, his Majesty looking upon the latter as only due to the Deity.

Frankfort, Jan. 13. By the last letters from Italy we have received the following accounts relative to the severe earthquake which happened at Rimini upon the 31st of December, and was repeated for the two following days. Several houses were thrown down by it, and many others much damaged; the dome of the Seminary is almost entirely destroyed, 12 persons are killed and several wounded; many very considerable persons quitted their houses, and passed the night in their carriages, others went to the open parts of the town. The same shocks were felt at the same time at Fano, Faenza, Bologna, and other places in Romagna and Austrian Lombardy.

L O N D O N.—Jan. 27.

The humble ADDRESS of the Right Honourable the LORDS Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament assembled, presented to his Majesty on Wednesday the 24th of January 1787, with his Majesty's most gracious Answer.

Die Martii, 23. Januarii, 1787.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the LORDS Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament assembled, beg leave to return your Majesty our humble thanks for your most gracious Speech from the Throne.

Permit us to express to your Majesty the eagerness with which we take the earliest opportunity offered to us of joining the unanimous voice of our fellow-subjects in congratulating your Majesty on the late providential interposition of the Almighty in the preservation of a life so valuable to your people. We acknowledge, with reverence and gratitude, the divine goodness in averting the calamity with which we were threatened. We join in the general admiration of those virtues which compose your Majesty's character; and humbly beg leave to assure your Majesty, that we are happy in testifying the share we take in the loyal and affectionate attachment to your sacred person, which pervades the breasts of your Majesty's subjects in every part of your dominions.

It is with most sincere concern that we condole with your Majesty upon the loss, which you have sustained by the unfortunate death of that illustrious and excellent Princess your Majesty's august, her Royal Highness the Princess Amelia.

The present appearances of the preservation of the public tranquillity, as well as the assurances given to your Majesty by foreign powers of their friendly disposition to this country, give us the greatest satisfaction.

We return your Majesty our hearty thanks for your goodness in directing the treaty of navigation and commerce with the Most Christian King, and the convention with his Catholic Majesty, to be laid before us; and we beg leave to assure your Majesty, that in considering measures of so important and interesting a nature, we shall be happy to find in them a tendency to give an additional permanency to the blessings of peace, the encouragement of industry, and the extension of lawful commerce between your Majesty's subjects and those of the Most Christian King, and that we shall with pleasure concur in any regulations calculated to insure those salutary purposes.

We learn with great satisfaction that your Majesty has taken measures for the transportation of a number of convicts, and for removing the inconveniences which arise from the crowded state of the gaols; and we beg your Majesty will be assured, that we shall be ready to concur in such further provisions as may be found necessary for this purpose.

We shall, with the same readiness, co-operate in whatever regulations may appear to be proper for the ease of the merchants, and for the simplifying the public accounts, in the various branches of the revenue; and your Majesty may depend upon our best and steadiest exertions in pursuit of such measures as may tend still further to improve the national resources, and to promote and confirm what has ever been the first object of the parental care and attention of your Majesty, the welfare and happiness of your people.

His Majesty's most Gracious Answer,

My Lords,

I Thank you for this very loyal and dutiful Address.

Your expressions of affectionate attachment to my person and zeal for my government, as well as your assurances of proceeding to the consideration of the important objects which I have recommended to you, give me the greatest satisfaction.

The Duke of Portland and his friends went up to Court with the Address. In personal congratulations on his Majesty's signal deliverance all parties equally join, and are equally ready to manifest the sincerity of their attachment to his family and person.

His Majesty's Answer to the Address of the House of Commons:

I thank you for this very loyal and dutiful Address.

The warm expressions of your affectionate attachment to my person, and the assurances of your intention to apply with diligence to those interesting objects which I have recommended to your consideration, afford me peculiar satisfaction.

Mr Drummond and Mr Roe, Commissioners of Public Accounts, yesterday presented to the House of Commons their fifteenth report, which finishes the subject of the Customs.

Yesterday, Sir Hugh Palliser was at the levee at St James's, for the first time these five years.

Wednesday Dr Prettyman kissed his Majesty's hand on being appointed to the Bishopric of Lincoln; as did Dr Thurlow on being advanced to the See of Durham.

Baron Eyre also was introduced, and kissed his Majesty's hand on being appointed Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, in the room of Chief Baron Skinner resigned.

Same day the Duke of Portland was at the levee at St James's, and had an audience of the King.

The shop-tax is said to have fallen fifty thousand pounds short of the sum it was laid at; but there being hopes that it will be productive (tho' not popular) it is to be continued.

The glove tax has fallen short thirty thousand pounds, and, there being no reason to hope that it will encrease, it will be abolished.

The House of Commons was very full on Tuesday, and neither side exhibited the least symptom of despondency.

We can assure the public, from the best authority, that the long talked of measure to reduce the legal interest of money from five to four per cent. will take place early in the present session of Parliament.

A morning paper of this day says, that the Ottoman army was entirely defeated by the rebel Beys on the 28th of October last, and that they lost all their baggage and artillery.

The Bishop of Durham is a worthy character; and, though brother to the Chancellor, prays more than he swears, which is rather strange!—He has the wishes of all good men for a long enjoyment of his new See!

The Chancellor informed his brother of his being translated to Durham in nearly these words:—"What say you to a journey to Bishop's Auckland; it lies pretty far to the North, to be sure,—but you have been as steady as the magnet in pointing to it.—Well, you have it now; and I suppose you'll tell me I shall have in return a new wooljack stuffed with the first shearing of your flock!"

On Wednesday last, after the Bishop of Lincoln had been at St James's to do homage for the Bishopric of Durham,—he dined with the Chancellor;—where he expressed himself frequently with great piety towards Durham,—which he termed his See.—The Chancellor turning to him with some warmth cried out, "Not so much about your favourite G, I beg.—If you must give us the monosyllable, wait till we have dined!"

Thursday Lord George Gordon received a message from the Attorney General to meet him at Chambers;—his Lordship returned for answer, that he would meet Mr Attorney in no place but the Court of King's Bench.

Lord George Gordon being disappointed on Thursday, in addressing a speech to the Court as has been usual with him on every day before, since the beginning of the Term, yesterday resumed his wonted eloquence, and told the Court, that he wished to rectify the error into which they had fallen, in wording the Subpoena which he held in his hand, and which he contended was contrary to law, as it omitted giving him those additional appellations, which by law he was entitled to, and that they should have given him the title of Esquire, as a justice of peace. It was well known he was possessed of several offices and estates, with realties annexed, in which he exercised a judicial authority more absolutely than my Lord Mansfield; and the additions annexed to the name of Geo. Gordon, were as numerous and important, in contemplation of law, as those annexed to the name of George Gwelf. He had no right, he asserted, to conclude, that the subpoena was directed to him in particular, for there were four noblemen, and a thousand gentlemen of the name of George Gordon. He then proceeded to read a passage from a volume of Blackstone's Commentaries; upon which the Court asked, if he had yet regularly appeared? And being told by the officer that he had not, the Court then desired to see the subpoena; whereupon his Lordship was told, that the subpoena was perfectly regular, that no addition was necessary, as no process of outlawry lay upon it; but if his Lordship contemptuously neglected to appear to it, a writ of Venire would issue against him; upon which an outlawry might be grounded; and in that writ he ought to have his proper additions. Lord George, however, was not satisfied with the opinion of the Court; for he did not understand, he said, why he should have no addition to his name in the subpoena, while Pepper Arden had Esquire at full length to his. And upon the subpoena being handed back to him, he said he would not acknowledge it; that whenever he was called upon by his proper name and addition, he would answer, but not till then; and after bowing with much complaisance to the Bar, and then to the Bench, retired.

It is a fact no less extraordinary than true, that the Queen of France, who, during the whole period of the commercial arrangements, wore nothing but English dainties, and English manufactures in general, as the leading fashion at Court, immediately after the treaty of commerce was signed, wore nothing but what was manufactured in France.—This augurs badly, we are afraid, for our commercial treaty.

In assenting to the address, at the same time that he disapproved the policy involved with the commercial treaty, Mr Fox was not guilty of that inconsistency imputed to him. It cannot be doubted that his Majesty has the welfare of the nation in view in framing the commercial treaty; he is therefore entitled to the respectful acknowledgments of his subjects; nothing can be more common in life than to thank one for an offer, at the same time that we think it more for our advantage to decline accepting it.

We can assure the public, from undoubted authority, that a letter has been received a few days ago from the celebrated Mr Howard, who was then at Vienna, containing such a remonstrance against the design of erecting a statue for him, as the liberal patrons of that intention cannot possibly resist.

Mr Howard, when he was at Vienna, was ill of a fever which he had contracted in the lazaretto at Venice. But his friend received another letter from him on Thursday, dated at Amsterdam, in which he gives the agreeable intelligence that he was quite recovered, and intended to be at home about the 1st of February.

The Emperor of Germany, Mr Howard adds, honoured him with a private audience, and in consequence of his representations, has made several alterations in his prisons. He has also pulled down almost all the monasteries at Vienna, and diminished the annual revenue of the Pope, to the amount of 25,000 florins.

The letter from Mr Howard farther mentions, that the ecclesiastical electors of Cologne, Treves, and Metz, have allowed all the clergy in their dominions to marry.

EDINBURGH.

Extract of a letter from London, Jan. 27.

Mr Burke, by whom the House of Commons were informed on Wednesday last, that the enquiry into the charges against Mr Hastings would be resumed on Thursday the 1st February, has altered his mind, and postponed it till the Monday following; not because he is not ready to enter upon the business, but to afford Mr Sheridan an opportunity, in the mean time, of calling evidence to the bar, for some introductory matter to the consideration of the grand complaint against Mr Hastings, on account of his conduct towards the Prince and Princesses of Oude, on which Mr Burke is said to place his greatest hopes of succeeding in establishing his impeachment of this great oriental character.

Doctor Prettyman, Secretary to Mr Pitt, besides being appointed Bishop of Lincoln, in the room of Doctor Thurlow, translated to the See of Durham, is also appointed to the Deanery of St Paul's.

THAT in consequence of certain writs of extent issuing from the Exchequer, the whole debts and effects that belonged to the said Company being attached and carried off from the factor, no dividend of their estate can be made.

But, as certain heritable subjects belonged to James Kempt, one of the partners of said Company, did not fall under the effect of said writ, the same has been sold to Thomas Adair, clerk to the signet, the factor, for behoof of the Creditors, of which he has made up a state, with a state of the debts that have been proven and lodged with him, and a scheme or call, dividing the free produce of the moiety so recovered among the Creditors, according to their order of ranking, all in terms of the statute; and which states and scheme, with general state of the bankrupts affairs, lie with the factor open for inspection, until the 30th day of March next, when a general meeting of the Creditors is to be held at one o'clock afternoon, within the Old Exchange Coffeehouse, for the purpose of receiving their dividends, and giving further orders for the future management of the estate.

Doctor Dickinson's Cephalic Drops.

THE Public having for some time past been deprived of the benefit of this valuable medicine, owing to the death of the late proprietor, and other unavoidable causes, the present proprietor begs leave to inform the Nobility, Gentry, and the Public in general, that they are again faithfully prepared from the Doctor's own receipts.

The virtues of these Drops are well known to many families of distinction, who have used them with success; the proprietor, nevertheless, thinks it not improper to say, that he is in possession of many original letters from persons of undoubted veracity, which prove the extraordinary cures the WHITE DROPS have done in Convulsions, Fits, Falling Sickness, Apoplexy, Palsy, and other nervous complaints; and are found to be serviceable in the Small-pox and Measles, as seldom to fail of success. The RED DROPS are particularly adapted to Convulsion Fits in Children, and generally prove a very successful remedy.

The late Archbishop Wake, speaking of the usefulness of this medicine (in a letter which the proprietor preserves,) writes thus: "After eighteen years experience, I do take it to be one of the most excellent remedies in the world for Convulsion Fits both in men, women, and children, and am persuaded it will be for the good of mankind to have it made more common." And in other letters his Grace declares, he had recommended these Drops to many with good success; and that he had more reason than any man to bless God for the use of them.

The above Drops are sold by Andrew Smith, perfumer, Bridge Street, Edinburgh, and no where else in Scotland. At the said shop of A. Smith, may be had a fresh and complete assortment of Perfumery articles, by the last ship from London.
